

HL7 Standards

HL7 Version 3 Normative Edition 2010, Normative Edition 2009, Normative Edition 2008, Normative Edition 2006, 2.5, 2.4, 2.3.1, and 2.3 are currently available for download. Please read the following Health Level Seven ("HL7") International copyright notice prior to downloading any HL7 Standard.

Copyright Notice

Health Level Seven International asserts and retains copyright in all works contributed by members and non-members relating to all versions of the Health Level Seven standards and related materials unless other arrangements are specifically agreed upon in writing.

The HL7 Standards are an evolving and expanding body of work prepared by the members of HL7. They are protectable as works of copyrightable authorship under applicable US and international copyright principles. Consistent with these principles, HL7 asserts and holds domestic and international copyrights to the Standards. Recognizing that Standards are the work product of the membership of HL7, and that HL7 is the collective representative of all of the member's interests, these copyrights are asserted and held by Health Level Seven International in its capacity as the representative of its total membership. All members of HL7 have and will continue to possess the usage rights to the HL7 Standards as authorized by the applicable HL7 member agreements.

As the Canadian affiliate for HL7 International, Canada Health Infoway Inc., operating in this context under the trade name of HL7 Canada, is responsible for ensuring the protection of HL7 International's intellectual property rights in Canada.

Individual members or student members with HL7 Canada may obtain the standard but may not copy or reproduce any versions of the Health Level Seven standards and related materials. Corporate members of HL7 Canada are entitled to distribute versions of the Health Level Seven standards and related materials within their organization but may not do so for profit.